Chics go Grain and Produce. CHICAGO, March 15.—There was quite a good trade ir, wheat today, but principally on local as count, Outside news was scarce and outside business light. The feeling det sloped was weaker, influenced by fine and favorable weather for the growing scrop and good weather abroad and dull and easier cables. The opening was Well to lower than vesterday's closing and under free speculative offerings prices further declined 15 c, though not without numerous slight fluctuations. Around 95c for May, however, a prominent local Going West, pass, bought freely which started the market up and prevented fur-ther decline. The buying was evidently to cover shorts as the party was credited a day or two ago with being a parge setler. From the inside prices for May a recovery of 15c followed and closed al out 136c lower than closing figures of ye sterday. June closed about 1%c lower and July about lie lower.

The, 'e was but little interest manifested in corn, fluctuations being within narrow limits an id trading almost exclusively local. The feeling on the whole was somewhat easi. T, the fine weather having a tendency to increase offerings.

A fair volume of business transpired in Dats. The op ming was weak and rather D unsettled, but at inside figures of the day. Offerings were fair, but the buying by a large house prod uced a change in the sentiment. A strong er feeling prevailed and advanced 1.c. A recession of Mc followed. Later in the session, how of Mc followed. Later in the session, however, a stronger feeling developed and prices advanced Mc, the market closing steady at a net gain of McMc over yester-

New South Wales sent to the Queen for her approval an act facilitating divorce, which equals the famous Connecticut laws. It provides that whenever husband and wife remain away from each other for three years without personal or written communication either may get a divorce. Cruslty continued for two years is a legitimate ground against the husband, but not against the wife. A continual habit of drunkenness for two years is, however, a valid plea for either party to put against the other, provided it prevents the busband from providing for the wife or the wife from performing her domestic duties. A man, apparently, may keep as drunk as he pleases provided he gives his wife plenty of money.

The Legislature of the Mexican State of Jailsco enacted a law that all the males, who are to a large extent Indians, should in public wear pantalcons, commencing on the 1st of September. When the day came in the city of Guadalajara the balconies were full of pretty girls watching and laughing at the antics of the aguadores, cargadores, carboneros, etc., as they went about their respective duties. Some of the men got their pantaloons on wrong side before others did not know how to use the pockets, and others walked very awkwardly. The indians have finally accepted the new order of things. European settlement in India at Cochin in 1502, and the Portuguese held undisputed sway for a long time. The Dutch obtained a footbold in India in 1602, the French in 1664. The English established factories at Surat and other places in 1612, and at the present time rule over the richest portions SNAILS AS FOOD.

E E HAMILTON M. D. Where the Mollusca Are Considered a Delicious Article of Diet.

A Wiltshire correspondent writes us in some amazement, says the London Standard, that only last week he found a man searching for snails, not as zoological speci-mens, but as articles of food. Still more extraordinary, he actually praised them Simply roasted on the bars of the grate and eaten with pepper and vinegar they are de clared to be toothsome. Soaked in salt and water and then cooked and served after the fashion of whelks and periwinkles they are still better. In winter the land shells, like snalls, are hibernating in holes, under leaves, and in the hollows of trees. As all the species in a torpid state lay on a load of tat before retiring for the winter, the snail seeker, though possibly he did not quite understand the reason why, was of the opinion that it was only at this period of the year that the molinsos are fit for human consumption. Here, most likely, he was wrong. But at all events, in supping freely on such dainty bits, the Wiltshire gourmet has proved himself a great deal more sensi ble than many people who may be inclined to call him hard names, and then proceed to swallow a dozen raw oysters and a pi cheese so swarming with parasites that if the latter were unanimous it would walk off

Wiltshire is, however, not singular in possessing a man above the prejudices of his neighbors. In several parts of England snails are regularly eaten-not, it is true, as an ordinary article of diet, but at stated feasts. For instance, the Newcastle glass men were famous for their taste in that di rection. Every year they held a sort of gastronomic festival, at which snails figured as the principal dish. Whether the custom has since fallen into decay is a question on which, no doubt, local information is

But we believe that the iron-puddlers in some parts of the Black country are wise enough to still indulge in the same dainty, and it is by no means uncommon to hear of snails boiled in milk being prescribed, like tients far gone in consumption. It is less agreeable to know that at one time they were employed in the manufacture of imitation cream and that in spite of analysts and acts of Parliament they are even yet bruised and stewed in milk to form one of the telerably palatable articles which pas

In the neighborhood of Dixon a small farmer has been known to clear $1,500 per annum from snails, the vine-growers keep-ing them in dry cellars or in treaches under coverings of leaves and earth, and from certain "escargotieres" near Ulm, in Wurtemberg, no fewer than 10,000 000 of the vineyard snails are sent every year to other gardens to be fat-tened before they are dispatched for the use of the Austrian converts during lent. From Troves it has been calculated that snails to the value of $100,000-the wholesale price being 4s per 100-are for warded to the Paris markets. Packed in casks they are also exported in a small way to the United States.

A. wife, a wise woman will learn how to keep a husband just as she learns how to keep louse, to make chicken croquettes, cho late cream, bread, beds or lemonade, and if she doesn't, why, some siren will for all time relieve her of the trouble. Men like to preach down extravagance, and style, and dress; but the woman who bangs her hair. hides a blotch or scar under a piece of courtings, trim slippers, perfumes, balms, cold creams, finger curls and fancy notions to increase her charms, is the woman who is admired by them all. Common sense and ugliness may be morally wholesome, but they're not alluring, and art is apt to triumph over nature unadorned. If a man is fond of flattery, let him have it. If he has ambitions or schemes, listen to him with open eyes of wonder, and, no matter what the occasion is, never permit your knowledge to exceed his. Men despiso smart women, but have no fault to find when her talent is large enough to appreciate his greatness. Men like to be looked up at, depended on, quoted and referred to. An ugly temper is a trial that few women are able to endure. The only cure is si-lence. You can't kiss a furious man; it only makes him worse. The thing to do is to keep still, let him cool, and let the matter drop. He will respect your sense and come to terms of his own accord. To be the husband that is worth wedding is worth keeping; and if a little artifice, a pleasant smile, a contented heart, forbearance, derotion and tact will hold him, by all means let him be held. Men must be taken as they are, not as they should be; they im-prove under the refining influence of mutual interest and love, and he is a very wretched specimen of humanity who can not be counted on to shield his wife from the buffets of the world and be an anchor for her when youth and beauty have proved unfaithful. Successful Treatment of Croup.

A correspondent of Good Housekeeping gives the following account of the success-ful treatment of a case of croup: "Remembering a child of our own who was attacked in a similar manner, we procured a pail, filled it with bot water, and, quickly removing the little one's shoes and stockings, placed her feet in the pail. We lost no time in roasting three onions, then mashing them, spread them upon a folded napkin, pouring over the whole a table-spoonful of goose grease (lard or sweet oil will do as well). The poultice was applied as hot as could be borne to the threat and upper part of the neck. In ten minutes the quick short gasps ceased, and at the end of half an hour the child, warmly wrapped in a soft blanket, was sleeping soundly. The skin was moist and the breathing natural; all symptoms of the dreaded scourge had disappeared as if by magic."

A Famous French Palace

The historic palace of St Cloud, located in the environs of Paris, is named from Prince Clodoald, or Cloud, who became a monk in 533 after murdering his brothers, and died in 560. The palace was built in the sixteenth century, and in one of its princi-pal rooms Clement assassinated Henry II., August 2, 1589. The palace, which has for years been the property of the Duke of Or-leans, was purchased by Marie Antoinette in 1785. It was a favorite residence of the Empress Josephine, of Charles X, and Napoleon III. It was burned during the siege of Paris, October 13, 1870, and has never
